EPA is committed to working closely with response agencies and state and local officials to ensure the safety of citizens, respond to concerns and to evaluate impact to water contaminated by the Gold King Mine Release. EPA is sharing information as quickly as possible with the public as experts work to evaluate any effects the spill may have on drinking water, public health, agriculture, fish and wildlife.

Subject: Durango Radio Interview

Mr. McGrath,

My name is Eric Nyquist and I am the News Director at Four Corners Broadcasting in Durango. I wanted to check and see if you are interested in doing a 5 to 10 minute Pre Recorded PHONE interview this week at your convenience. I was hoping to ask you about the specific process that the EPA uses to test water samples of the Animas River and which aspects of that process takes time. The purpose is not to bring that process under fire, but to give the community an idea of why the EPA doesn't (can't) have all the answers immediately. The interview will be used as part of our daily news coverage.

Please feel free to contact me via this email address (news@radiodurango.com) or on my cell, Personal Email/Ex. 6

Thank you,

Eric Nyquist
